OHIOANS BRAVE RAIN STORM IN EARLY VOTING

RECORD BALLOT IN STATE EXPECTED

2,000,000 to Register Will at Polls, is Forecast

WOMEN AMONG FIRST IN LINE

Marks Ending of One of Hardest Fought Campaigns

COLUMBUS — (By Associated Press.)—A heavy downpour of rain in portions of Ohio Tuesday threatened to dampen the ardor of early morning voters and delay the casting of what promised to be a record vote in one of the hardest fought political campaigns in the state's history. Clearing skies and cooler weather were promised later in the day.

Party leaders and workers were early astir and exerting every effort to get out the full voting strength of their organizations. Early indications were, despite the rainfall, that practically every person eligible to vote would before nightfall have cast his or her ballot.

Women voters plus the normal increase in men voters, are expected to swell Ohio's vote to more than 22,000,000. The previous record was 1,165,000 cast in 1916.

EARLY MORNING VOTE

With rain falling steadily lines of voters were diminished when the doors of the polling places opened at 5:30. Most of the first voters were men, however, who stopped on their way to work to cast their ballots. A few women were present early, however, and their number steadily increased as the hours passed. A late evening rush of voters was expected by election officials.

Officials were hopeful, if the rain did not continue that women voters would try to comply with the request of the secretary of state that they go to the polls between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. in order to avoid the rush during the closing hours.

POLLS GUARDED

CHICAGO — (By Associated Press.)—Deputies from the office of Charles F. Byrne, United States district attorney, were added to the ballot box guards of special police and party workers in Chicago Tuesday, following the warnings given judges in numerous precincts by Mr. Byrne to be on the watch for law violators.

While Monday's heavy rain was not expected to cut the Chicago vote, Lieutenant Governor Len Small and former Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Republican and Democratic candidates for governor respectively, each claimed an advantage from its effect on the down-state rural vote. There are eight other candidates for governor besides these two, and a considerable share of the electorate vote of 2,300,000 in the state is conceded by political experts to candidates other than those of the two major parties. The contest between Lewis and Small has aroused almost as much interest as the presidential campaign.

Lines Formed at Voting Booths

Many Vote Before Breakfast—Half of Total in Before Noon

Persons eligible to vote in Lima flocked to the polls the earliest in history Tuesday morning. Several hours before noon over half of the registered voters had cast their ballots.

Judges in a precinct in the First Ward reported that 103 persons had voted out of 204 registered; a precinct in the second reported 250 had voted out of 443 registered; a Third Ward precinct official said 145 had voted out of 237 registered; in the Fifth Ward 149 voted out of 297 registered and in the Sixth Ward 139 had voted out of a total registration of 261.

Veteran election officials said never before had they seen such a heavy early vote.

Many families hustled to the polls before breakfast and waited their turn in line before casting their ballots.

LONDON.—(By Associated Press.)—Six months at hard labor and deportation thereafter was the sentence imposed in Bow-st. police court Tuesday upon Erik Welheim, the "mystery man" who was arraigned in this court a week ago charged by the government with acting as an intermediary between members of revolutionary groups in Great Britain and Russian revolutionaries. Neither the name nor the nationality of the prisoner was made known at the time of his arraignment.

It was upon Welheim that the government's attorney announced that a letter from Sylvia Pankhurst to Nikolai Lenin, premier of Soviet Russia, had been found in which Miss Pankhurst was alleged to have written:

"The situation is most acute, not ready for a revolution yet."

Miss Pankhurst has since been sentenced to six months imprisonment on charges of having published seditious literature designed to affect the navy, in the newspaper the Workers' Dreadnought, one of the attacks in which was entitled "Discontent on the Lower Deck."

MRS. COX VOTES WITH GOVERNOR

Democratic Nominee Ends His Campaign at Toledo

LEAVES POLLS FOR THE FARM

Mrs. Harding Accompanies Husband in Casting Ballot

DAYTON.—(By Associated Press.)—Governor Cox, the Democratic candidate, back from Toledo, where he made his last speech of the campaign Monday night, Tuesday cast his vote, as he said, for the League of Nations.

His special train arrived here early in the morning, but the governor was asleep. Soon afterward he arose, and leaving the railroad yards he stopped on his way at a cross roads store to cast his ballot. Mrs. Cox, who accompanied her husband to Toledo, went to the polls with him.

These words, long by the angels at Bethlehem, 2,000 years ago, the governor said would come true as a result of America's entrance into the league.

Thousands that assembled in two halls greeted his last message with applause and as died away at the last meeting the governor hurried to his train to bring him back home. After casting his vote, the governor went to his farm home to remain there until the election returns began to come in at his downtown newspaper office. There he expected to spend most of the night, watching the count.

LAST CAMPAIGN WORDS

The last words of the Democratic candidate's long campaign, uttered Monday night at Toledo, were:

"Peace on earth, good will toward men."

These words, long by the angels at Bethlehem, 2,000 years ago, the governor said would come true as a result of America's entrance into the league.

Thousands that assembled in two halls greeted his last message with applause and as died away at the last meeting the governor hurried to his train to bring him back home. After casting his vote, the governor went to his farm home to remain there until the election returns began to come in at his downtown newspaper office. There he expected to spend most of the night, watching the count.

HARDING PLAYS GOLF

MARION.—(By Associated Press.)—While the nation was recording its decision Tuesday on his candidacy for president, Senator Harding put politics out of his mind and gave the greater part of his time to a game of golf.

Arranging to visit the polls and cast his own vote early in the forenoon, he chose to spend all of the remainder of the day away from Marion. He played the 18-hole club, near Columbus, for his golf game and was to make the 19 mile trip back by motor late in the afternoon.

Tuesday night with Mrs. Harding and a circle of relatives and friends he will learn the result of the balloting, where local Republican leaders have planned a red tie celebration in his honor.

If there was in the candidate's mind any apprehension over the outcome, it did not manifest itself in his outward demeanor. He wore the same air of smiling confidence that has characterized his manner throughout his campaign and there was apparent an additional touch of satisfaction and other points in the county section that the stress of political debate and maneuvering was over.

Mrs. Harding, his constant companion during his campaign, appeared equally confident and she insisted on doing her full part to the end of the night by accompanying him to the polls and casting her first vote for him.

BARRELS REPLACE TIN BOXES TO CARE FOR WOMEN'S VOTE

Women Helping Elect Executive For First Time

BOTH PARTIES CONFIDENT

Chairman White and Hays Still Predict Victory

NEW YORK.—(By Associated Press.)—Men and women voters of the 48 sovereign states of the nation went to the polls Tuesday to select a new president for the four years beginning March 4, next.

Before the dawn of another day has broken, the country in all likelihood will know whether Warren G. Harding, Republican, or James M. Cox, Democrat, has been elected to succeed Woodrow Wilson, for it is generally agreed that, barring a miracle, none of the other five candidates has a chance. This choice, it is estimated, will be registered by a record vote between 20,000,000 and 25,000,000 persons, many of whom are women who have been enfranchised since the last presidential election and are voting Tuesday for the first time.

Second only in interest to the contest for the presidency is the fight between the two major parties for the control of the next congress. Thirty-four United States senators, 32 to fill seats now held by 17 Democrats and 15 Republicans and two to fill the unexpired terms caused by the deaths of Senators Bankhead, Alabama, and Martin, Virginia, both Democrats, are being chosen as well as an entire new house of representatives, composed of 35 members.

The present senate is composed of 47 Democrats, 43 Republicans and one Republican and Progressive. The present house consists of 190 Democrats, 232 Republicans, two Independent Republicans, one Independent and one Prohibitionist. There are also nine vacancies.

FIGHT FOR CONGRESS

Will H. Hays and George White, Republican and Democratic candidates for president, respectively, were confident of victory when the polls opened. Mr. Hays reiterated his prediction that the Republican ticket was "certain to obtain 800 electoral votes and that there was a strong possibility that the total might reach the 400 mark. A total of 266 is necessary to elect. Mr. White gave out no last minute prediction on the electoral vote, but renewed his expression of confidence in the election of Governor Cox. Each chairman predicts control of the next congress for his party.

EXTENDING OF CAMPAIGN

The campaign itself, waged principally around the league of nations issue, did not come to an end until an early hour Tuesday morning. Senator Harding spent election eve quietly at his home in Marion, while Governor Cox wound up his campaign at a big meeting in Toledo Monday night, but stilling local candidates throughout the country kept up their paces for votes into the dark hours of the night.

Unsettled weather, with the possibility of rain, faced the early voters of the eastern states as they trudged to the polls to cast their ballots. While those of the upper Mississippi valley and northern New England and New York prepared for the weather man's prediction of snow, the rest of the country is expected to vote under clear skies.

Senator Harding will await the verdict of the electorate at his home in Marion, where he will receive news bulletins compiled from figures collected by the Associated Press. Governor Cox plans to receive the returns in the office of his newspaper, The Dayton Daily News, which is a member of the Associated Press and will obtain its full election night service.

Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts, Republican vice presidential nominee, will receive the returns at Boston, while his Democratic opponent, Franklin D. Roosevelt, will await the result at his home in Hyde Park, N. Y.

The 20th Century Laurel Heater

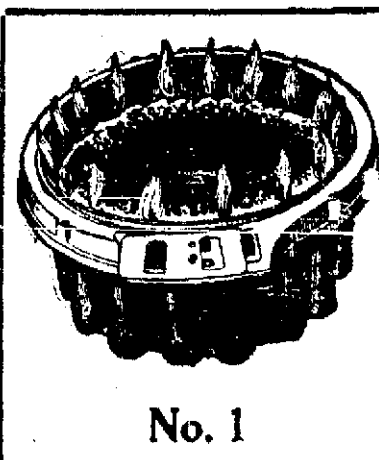

The Only Smoke Consuming Hot Blast Heater Made
NO SMOKE NO SOOT NO DIRT

In the selection of a heater there are certain facts which should be kept in mind:
1st.—Is the heat from the fuel consumed permitted to escape up the chimney or is the stove built in such a manner, as to radiate the heat into the room.
2nd.—Is the stove you have in mind to purchase made of castings which will stand the hard usage to which a stove is subjected, and are these castings properly mounted so as to insure cleanliness? Are the castings further made from original patterns which are subjected to shrinkage, preventing opening of joints which will cause fine ashes to escape and render very uncleanly conditions in the room in which the stove is placed?

In the Process of Construction of the 20th Century Laurel Heaters great care and thought has been given to build stoves in a scientific manner, keeping in mind the minimum expense of operation and of sufficient surface stove plate as to fully extract all the heat units from the fuel, radiating it into the room, instead of up the chimney, and which the stoves after a careful test have proven fully to consume all of the fuel. There are over 222,000 20th Century Laurel Heaters in use today, and daily are increasing in popularity.

No. 1

Illustration No. 1 is of the Fire Pot used in all sizes of the 20th Century LAUREL Heater, as well as hot blast ring at the top of the fire pot, which is almost indestructible on account of being under constant ventilation. Some heaters have a hot blast ring on the interior of the fire pot, subject to the combustion, which is very short lived.

No. 2

Cut No. 2 shows the LAUREL register grate used in connection with the slotted fire pot. No other stoves have this combination fire pot and register grate, which permits the coal to burn from the outside toward the center. Free from dirt, clinkers and smoke. at 7:30 a. m., and resulted as follows:

Four years ago New Ashford gave Hughes, Republican, 16 votes, and President Wilson, Democrat, 7.

BUTTER IN STORAGE IN OHIO ON THE INCREASE
COLUMBUS.—According to a report from the state bureau of markets, there were 3,757,882 pounds of butter in storage during September in Ohio, an increase from 394-

126 at the beginning of the month. The high price of containers is said to account for the fact that only 6482 barrels of apples were reported in storage in the state October 1, against 11,134 a year ago. The amount of beef stored remained practically the same but a slight drop was reported in pork.

The Lima News

AND TIMES-DEMOCRAT
PUBLISHED EVERY DAY IN THE NEWS BUILDING, 121 E. HIGH STREET
BY THE NEWS PUBLISHING COMPANY

Entered at postoffice at Lima as second class mail matter.

THEY DON'T COME OFTEN

THE one and only pleasing thing about Presidential campaigns is that they come only once every four years. And, in the opinion of a lot of folks who grow weary of the continual round of political speeches, newspaper "dope" and their mail box bulging to the bursting point with literature, even once in four years is too often.

Registering their will at the ballot box today, many thousands of persons will have a sigh of genuine relief, with the expression, audible or inaudible: "I'm glad it's so near all over."

Tonight there'll be the keenest interest in the outcome of the election as the ballots are counted. Before another sun rises in the east it will be pretty positively established as to who is going to be "who" so far as holding the offices during the next two or four years is concerned.

When that is all settled, then humanity will settle down for a rest from a period of strenuousness, content to let the old world wag on serenely, then something else will pop up to absorb the public mind. The general public isn't altogether happy unless there is something doing continually.

Of course, the election aftermath is going to be the big item of interest until the last figures from remote precincts are in and the results are positively established beyond all question of doubt. Those who express fear that there will be nothing of interest in the newspapers after the election is over, should possess themselves in patience. Trust the eagle-eyed "news hound" to find something to afford material for big headlines and interesting paragraphs.

BURN CORN FOR FUEL

WORD goes out from Omaha, Nebraska, that hundreds of thousands of bushels of corn may be burned as fuel by farmers in northern Nebraska this winter.

The reason given therefore is high priced coal and the bounteous but low priced crop of corn. Advices from Omaha, Neb., state that new corn, unshelled, brings three-fourths of a cent a pound, or $15 a ton. And the cheapest soft coal there is quoted at $15 per ton.

A wagon box 30 inches high is required to hold a ton of unshelled corn and that amount, it is said, will make a hotter fire and last longer than a ton of coal.

The argument is good as far as it goes. If corn brings no more per ton than coal, and coal brings no more than corn, a medium of exchange might be worked up, if the necessity of the cost of moving the coal in and the corn out could be overcome. In that manner, stock and human beings would not be robbed of the foodstuff that is afforded from the corn crop and the coal producer could market the corn as easily as the coal.

However, seriously speaking, it certainly does sound foolish to have a condition of affairs that would even suggest such a situation. We can eat or burn corn, but coal can only be burned.

"I TOLD YOU SO"

H'E'll be with us tomorrow. The "I told you so" fellow, otherwise described as the particular individual you will meet on the street, his face creased with a big smile and after the usual salutation, he'll say, referring to the result of the election: "I told you so," or "Didn't I tell you so?"

These folks are well meaning and they really think they are getting away with it—but they are not. Those who lay wagers on the result of an election are taking a chance. For in American politics there is no such "animal" as a sure thing. Indications sometimes are for naught. That has been proven time and again. Those who are the most confident of winning are often the worst beaten.

Usually, in matters of this kind the "wish is father of the thought." The best plan is to refrain from making positive forecasts of results of contests, then one doesn't have to do any explaining afterward. Exuberance and satisfaction are the natural consequence when the men and measures boosted by particular persons are successful in the ballot marathon. And, likewise, it is only to be expected that growing out of this same exuberance and satisfaction will be the time worn remark: "I told you so."

A lot of people will spring that very thing. You're in for it, whether your party wins or loses. Prepare to bear it. There's no escape.

PROTECTION OF QUAIL

STATEMENTS from Columbus are that no attempt is to be made to take protection from quail when the general assembly meets next year. The state fish and game commission is decidedly opposed to any such idea, according to A. C. Baxter, chief of the bureau of fish and game.

Reports somehow gained circulation over the state that the bureau would seek an open season for quail and an avalanche of protests has flooded the office at Columbus. The quail was placed on the list of song birds by the general assembly and it apparently is the well united wish of most of the people of the state that it be kept there.

Agitators are mischievously misleading the press and the people. Since this matter has come to the fore, it is timely and important to suggest that something ought to be done to assist in propagating quail and restocking the woods and fields with them, more than has been done. Legislation that will make this possible will undoubtedly be taken up with the grange and other farm organizations.

The bureau is establishing wild life sanctuaries in all parts of Ohio and it should be able to restock these refuges and also all Ohio farms with quail as well as pheasants. It is well too, to suggest that any legislation pertaining to quail should be planned with the representatives of farm organizations.

So far as is known, not a single sportsmen's organization in Ohio is advocating an open season on quail.

MISS LIMA: "When a man is addicted to smoking, his physician has no difficulty about telling him what is the cause of his ailment."

JUST A GIRL

BY JANE PHILIPS

MARY AND TOM GAIN A FRIEND

A few days afterward, Mary came to me at once home very much excited.

"I've got something to tell you tonight, Zena, that'll make you open your eyes."

"Haven't run away and married Tom, have you?" I asked.

"Nothing like that! Your boss came to the shop for his dinner. He's been there before, but I didn't know him. My, but he's a swell! And—"

"How did you know it was Mr. Claxton?"

"He told me. Introduced himself. That other man, Betts, was with him, too."

"Really! Was Tom there?"

"Yes, and that was the best part of it. Tom told me a gentleman had asked for me I went out, and that boss of yours motioned me. There was only one or two others in the shop. I went over to the table, and he said:

"Is this Miss Murphy?" I told him I was. Then he introduced himself and the other fellow, that one who was at the picture show. You'd a thought I was the Queen of England or some other high and mighty person the way he talked. Then when Tom came thru, he stopped him and without waiting for me to introduce him, he says, 'This is my friend, Mr. Thomas Clancy, Mr. Betts. I hear that you are soon to be Mrs. Clancy, Miss Murphy!'

"We are to be married in about a month," Tom answers, just as quiet like.

"I hope you may be very happy," your boss says, but you should have seen that man Betts. When your Mr. Claxton introduced him to Tom, his face got awfully red and he looked so funny. He never spoke, but your boss went right on talking to Tom and me, just as if we were real old friends. I'll bet you told him a lot about us."

"Yes, I did tell him some things. I had a little unpleasantness at the office. I lost my temper, and made Mr. Betts angry, and—"

"It was about that night at the picture show?"

"Yes, I then told Mr. Claxton who I was with, and how I liked both you and Tom. He asked me some questions, and I told him that you were going to be married, and that Tom had given up his clerkship, and was going to help you in the restaurant. You aren't offended because I told it, are you?"

"Not on your life! A few customers like him and we could retire in a year or two. He said everything in the place, most. That other man, Betts, didn't seem to be hungry, tho, he just pretended to eat."

"I can imagine he wasn't very comfortable." I was unwilling Mary should know Tom had been spoken of slurringly, but she must have mistrusted it, because she said:

"He ain't as much of a gentleman as Tom is in spite of being manager of a big office."

"Indeed, he is not!" I agreed, then changed the subject. But later Mary again referred to it by saying:

"He called Tom 'his friend,' Zena. Wasn't that nice of him?"

"He is always nice, Mary. I think he is what Dad would call a true gentleman."

The next day Mr. Claxton said to me:

"I am sure you will have no more trouble with Betts, Miss Stewart."

Source—An occupation.

Here is another group of Smith names, some of which are widespread and some of which are uncommon.

From the fact that the German name of Goldschmidt, or Goldschmidt, is exactly the parallel of the English Goldsmith, there are many who assume that the latter is merely a translation of the German name. It is true that in a great many cases, particularly on this continent, where a very large proportion of the population is of German descent, the German form has been changed to the English. But the name has an English origin as well. The same holds true of Silversmith.

Both of these names are to be found in the medieval tax lists and records of England, together with such names as Nasmyth, Greensmith and Brownsmith. In those days they were nearly always spelled with a "y" and bore a final "e."

The goldsmith, of course, was then as he is today, an artisan who fashioned gold into various articles of utility or adornment, while the silversmith worked in silver. The origin of the name Nasmyth is a little more obscure, but philology and social history prove that the word from which it was taken was the equivalent of "nail-smith," just as Arsenith, explained in a former article, is another form of "arrow-smith."

A "brownsmith" was a smith who worked in bronze, and a "greensmith" worked in lead.

"I predict your friends will make a great success of that restaurant. Miss Murphy is very bright, and her Thomas is just the sort to help her."

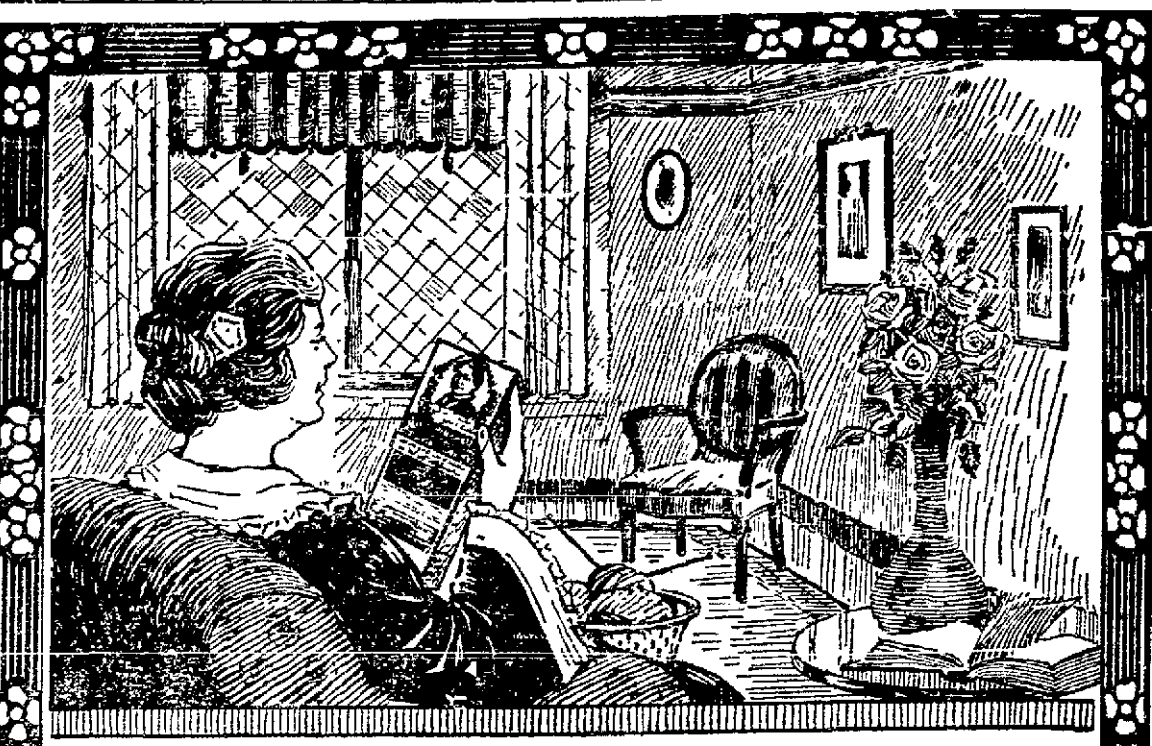

"Yes, I think so too. I have called him her balance wheel ever since I knew him."

"Please let me know if I can help in any way. I mean aside from eating their delicious griddle cakes—no, pancakes," he corrected himself. "When young people of their class are ambitious enough to start out for themselves, they deserve all praise."

"Thank you, Mr. Claxton. I'll tell Mary and Tom. They will surely appreciate your interest."

Tomorrow—An Unusual Happening.

Women of Middle Age

Owing to modern methods of living not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change in her life without experiencing a train of very annoying and sometimes painful symptoms. Those dreadful hot flashes, smothering spells, fainting spells, nervous troubles and irregularities are symptoms that should have prompt attention. These two letters prove what a successful remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is for women at this time of life.

These Two Women Helped During Change of Life.

Taunton, Mass.—"I could not eat or sleep for six months, had fainting spells and could not walk without help for three months, caused by female trouble. My cousin, who was a doctor, told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me greatly. Then during the Change of Life I used the same remedy. I am seventy years old now and am able to do my own housework and walk one mile to church every Sunday morning and evening. I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends having the same troubles as I had. Your remedy is the best on earth. I cannot find words to express my gratitude for it."—Mrs. SUSAN C. STAPLES, 137 B School St., Taunton, Mass.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I want to let you know what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I had organic troubles and am going through the Change of Life. I was taken with a pain in my side and a bad headache. I could not lie down, could not eat or sleep. I suffered something terrible and the doctor's medicine did me no good at all—my pains got worse instead of better. I began taking the Vegetable Compound and felt a change from the first. Now I feel fine and advise anyone going through the Change of Life to try it, for it cured me after I had given up all hopes of getting better. I will tell any one who writes to me the good it has done me."—Mrs. MARGARET DANZ, 743 N. 25th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

A film combatant

Most tooth troubles are now traced to film—to that viscous coat you feel. Film clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

The ordinary tooth paste does not end film. So the film remains—much of it—and may do a ceaseless damage. Nearly all people suffer from it, more or less.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar.

It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. So, despite the tooth brush, all these troubles have been constantly increasing.

SHOULD MEN BE BEAUTIFUL?

"Should men be beautiful?" asks a well-known writer on subjects of that sort. He advocates the use of corset belts and says that men should have some regard for the rights of others and should beautify their figures when possible.

Personally, altho having the misfortune to be born very lovely ourselves, we are not as a rule partial to beautiful men.

We find some beautiful men in mythology, but none in history.

The battling average of the homely men has been up around 1000 since history began. A homely man has the nerve to do things because he doesn't care what happens to him. It doesn't make much difference.

A man was getting shaved one day and the barber, looking out of the window to note the passing of a young lady, cut off the customer's right ear. Now to a beautiful man this would have been a catastrophe, but this particular customer didn't make any fuss.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINTS

By William Brady, M. D.

SELF IMPROVEMENT

Nearly every one who has passed the frivolous age, which runs up to thirty or thirty-five, in aggravated cases, is more or less conscious of an incentive to self-improvement. Owing to the top-heavy trend of popular education this cultivated desire for betterment has followed chiefly along the lines of mental improvement. The trouble with popular education in this country has been that it ignored the sound of principle of mental and in corporeal sense. We still have too many educators who imagine a sound mind can be developed in an unsound body. An "accomplished" or "cultured" person is one whose mind is highly trained or developed in certain particularities which every one of us would be glad to possess. This refining process is a matter of self-discipline. Every individual may have a liberal education if he wants it. Ignorance is just plain laziness in every case. One's learning is limited only by his appetite for knowledge. Just at present there is a sort of speed mania prevalent among the multitude seeking wisdom, a craze for short cuts to knowledge or skill or culture, a scramble on the part of the credulous after sundry "systems" of getting wisdom quickly.

For these quick systems seem to be much less laborious than the old way of acquiring education. Why spend months or years studying Spanish, the piano or the healing art when you can master the whole thing in twelve lessons by mail? Short cuts are invented for the shiftless who would walk with the elect without having earned the privilege. Even in the handicrafts the apprentice today is not content to learn his trade reasonably well; he must compete with his masters after a few weeks of superficial experience. There are short cuts, too, for physical improvement; the more ridiculous the system of healing the less knowledge or skill the freak healer requires to practice it and the more eagerly people purchase it.

It is generally recognized that a very sick man cannot exercise good judgment. It is for this reason that a sick doctor seldom attempts to treat himself. People readily make allowances for, or discount or even reject the opinions or actions of their public servants when these representatives are known to be seriously ill. But the impairment of judgment by comparatively slight illness is usually not considered, though it is still true that a sound mind requires a sound body.

I have repeatedly urged upon readers the value of regular daily room gymnastics in maintaining better health, health plus. In advising such exercises I have had in mind nothing else than the old adage: A sound mind in a sound body.

A learned judge in the west is investigating the divorce evil. The trouble with the divorce business is that people seem to make much of trivial affairs. One man even asked for a divorce because his wife hadn't spoken to him in three years. The court decided that what the man needs was not a divorce, but an alienist. If he had been granted a divorce that woman would not have been single ten minutes, and there would have been a riot at the marriage license window.

Up in Waterbury, Conn., they say an old farmer has dumped his peach crop into his well, added a few rats, corked up the top and is awaiting developments. It is expected the pump will yield a quality of brandy which will retail at $16 a gallon.

LOWER PRICES

ON DRY GOODS, READY-TO-WEAR, CLOTHING FURNISHING GOODS AND SHOES

We are meeting the situation by reducing our selling prices the instant the market braks and giving all our customers the benefit of such reductions. It was no surprise to the J. C. Penney Co., our buyers have been preparing for a break in the markets for over six months. Now, it is only human for every one to want that which is best when they spend their hard-earned dollars for it. Let us tell you briefly some of our methods used to keep down the high price. Buying for 297 stores, paying, cash, selling for cash, no loss of bad accounts, no bookkeepers, no collectors, no delivery system, no special sales, one price to everybody, every day in the year and that the lowest possible price. If you do not get full value for every dollar you spend in a J. C. Penney Co. Store it is your own fault — we stand ready and willing to adjust any claim at all times. You will receive the same courteous treatment when exchanging an article or making a claim as you did when making the purchase.

PLEASE REMEMBER THIS — Every department of this great organization is working for the very best interests of our vast army of satisfied customers in 26 states. We value this friendship and patronage, we are on our toes every minute to help them — to do everything we can to make it possible for them to buy their every day needs in wearing apparel for the least possible cost.

WE WERE THE LAST TO RAISE THE PRICE AND FIRST TO LOWER THEM

WHY WE HAVE REVISED OUR PRICES

The J. C. Penney policy has and always will be to deal with others as we would be dealt with.

We were the last to raise our prices and the first to lower them.

We have always sold better merchandise at lower prices and always will. When the wholesale price is less our price will be less.

Our buyers buy just as cheap as the jobbing house.

We save our customers the jobbers' profits and traveling man's expense and commissions. It is undeniably true—for the past six months we have been revising our prices.

THE J. C. PENNEY CO. will do more toward lowering the high cost of living than any other merchant in the country.

The J. C. Penney Co. has never taken undue advantage of their best friends and customers.

We are always abreast with the times—this is one reason why we are revising our prices to conform with the declining market.

When we receive any change in the manufacturers' prices we immediately lower our retail prices.

We do not mark down our prices for one special day, or a ten day sale and then raise the price to where it was.

We buy direct from the manufacturers—this fact alone is why we are the first to revise the retail price.

THE J. C. PENNEY CO. is now and ways has been the working man's best friend.

The Palace of Darkened Windows

BY MARY HASTINGS BRADLEY

Two off lamps flared in the little coffee-house. In one circle of yellow light two bearded sheikhs were playing dominoes with impatient gravity; the other lamp flickered over an empty table beneath which the thin, flea-bitten legs of a ragged urethra were showing in the oblivion of his tired sleep. In the shadow beyond sat a young American with a keen, impatient face, and a one-eyed Arab shrouded in a hugh burnous.

"I make fine dragoman?" the Arab was saying proudly. "This is ver' old coffee-house. Many things happen here, ver' strange."

"Yes, but I'm sick of the doggone place," said Billy fiercely. "I can't sit still and swallow coffee any longer. Can't we start now?"

"Too soon—too soon before the time. You say that? Come, we go next door. Nice place next door, perhaps—dancing, maybe."

There was noise enough next door, certainly, to promise dancing. The strident notes of Oriental music came shrieking out the open doorway, but as Billy stepped within and started over the heads of the squatting throng, he saw no sinewy dancers, but only two tiny girls in bright colors huddled wearily against the wall. The music which was absorbing every look came from the brazen throat of a huge instrument in the corner.

"Lord—a photograph!" thought the young man in disgust, resenting this intrusion of the genius of his race into foreign fields.

The squatting men, their dark lips parted in pleased smiles, were too intent upon the innovation to turn at his entrance, but the little girls caught sight of him and ran forward, begging clamorously, their bracelets clanking on their outstretched arms.

With a little silver he tried to soften the vigor of the one-eyed man's dismissal. "This cheap place has no good dancers any more," the Arab uttered in disgust. "New man here—no good. Maybe next door better—eh?"

But the next door was only a flight of steps and a lone little doll of a sentinel, painted and hung like a bedizened idol. Only the dark eyes in the tinted sockets were alive, and these turned curiously after the strange young man who had dropped a coin into her outstretched hand and passed on so hurriedly.

"I don't want any more of these joints," Billy was saying vehemently to his harassed guide. "It's dark as the Six now—let's be on our way."

The street they were on was narrow enough for any antiquarian, but the one into which the Arab guide now turned was no narrower than the jutting bays of the houses seemed pushing their faces impudently against their neighbors. A voice in one room could have been heard as clearly in the one over the way. It was a mean little street, squalid and poor and pitiful, but it maintained its stripped dignities of screened windows and isolation. It was better not to wonder what nights were like in those women's rooms in summer heat.

The lane-like path stopped at a richly sort of wharf and at their approach a black head bobbed quickly up from a waiting boat. It was the little boy who had shadowed the Captain that day—reporting his arrival at the Kuchidial palace—and he climbed out now and sat on the wharf, watching curiously while Billy and his guide bestowed themselves in the long canoe and pushed silently away.

It was an eerie backwater in which they were paddling, a sluggish stream which moved between dark houses. Sometimes it scraped against their sides and lapped their balconies; sometimes it was held in check by walls and narrow terraces. For Billy the water between the dark houses, the mirrored stars, the unexpected flare of some oil lamp and its still reflection, the whole windings and the stagnant smells held their suggestions of Venice for his senses, and he thought the businest he was going about was very similar to the business which had brought so many of the gentry of Venice to sudden and undesired ends.

The fires were horribly thick here. They settled upon the faces and arms of the paddlers totally unrepentant of rebuff. Billy's flesh crawled as he finished the swim with ringing slap that brought a low caution from his guide.

Now the canal was wider and shallower. The houses receded, and a field or so appeared, and frequent walls hedged the way. Then suddenly the houses came down again to the water and the ruins of old mosques and palaces lined the banks for a time; to be replaced by walls again. The windings were interminable and just when he was thinking that his silent guide was as confused as he was, the man made a sudden gesture to the right bank where a tiny strip of land showed above the water clinging to a high brick wall and with careful soundless strokes they brought the canoe up to that land.

Billy looked at his watch. It was nearly ten. Hurriedly he climbed out, taking out the stout, notched pole and the knotted rope with the iron hook at the end which he had prepared. The message which had been so intelligible to him was very simple. "Escape by canal to-night—come to the garden at ten," had been the words, and Billy, on hearing the description of the canal from the one-eyed man, had felt he understood.

"You're sure this is the place?" he demanded and on the man's much injured protestation, "Because if it isn't, I'll wring your neck instead of Kerissen's," he cheerfully promised and set his pole against the wall showing the man how to steady it. It was not the best climbing arrangement in the world, but time had been extremely limited, and the one-eyed man not inclined to pursue any investigations which would advertise their expedition.

Wrapping the rope about his shoulders, he started to pull himself up that notched pole by canal wall, but the man below him was holding against the wall, feeling desperately for any hold for toes and fingers in the rough chunks between the old bricks, and breathing hard he reached the top and threw one leg over. He felt something grind through the series of his trousers and sting into the flesh.

"Ground glass—the Old Boy!" said Billy through his teeth. He hoisted himself cautiously, and with his handkerchief swept the top of the wall as clean as he could. He heard the little pieces fall with a perilously loud tinkling sound, and flattened himself upon the wall and strained his eyes through the darkness of the garden, but no alarm was raised. The shadows seemed empty.

He hoped to the Lord that no disturbance would break out in the garden, for the man below would be off in the canoe like a flash. He had no illusions about the one-eyed man's loyalty, but the fellow was already in the secret; he was needy and resourceful and as trust-worthy as any dragoman that he could have. He had a reputation and a patronage he'd fear to lose. This melancholy Arab, hawking crocodiles for a Greek Jew, had more to gain than lose.

By now he had caught the end of the rough hook over the top of the wall, and let down the knotted rope into the garden below. It was long enough, thank goodness, he thought, wondering under what circumstances and in what company he would ascend it again. Then with one more keen look into the garden and a reassuring touch of the pocket where his revolver bulged, he gripped the rope and swiftly lowered himself.

Keeping close to the wall he pressed toward the buildings on the right which he had been told was the wing of the harem and as he stepped forward a flat black shadow near the wall came suddenly to life it sprang to its feet revealing a shrouded little form, wrapped and hooded in black, and ran to him with steps that stumbled in excitement. "Quick, quick!" breathed an almost inaudible voice of terror and Billy flung one strong arm about the girl and dashed toward the hanging rope. Gripping it with one hand he flung the light figure over his left shoulder and with a cheerily whispered "Hang tight," he threw himself into the ascent. It was arm-wrenching, muscle-racking work, with the dead weight upon him, but the touch of those soft arms clinging childishly about his neck seemed to double and treble his strength and with incredible quickness he lifted her to the top of the wall, and then catching her by the wrists, he lowered her into the unorchard clasp of the Arab. An instant more and he had reversed his rope ladder and climbed down beside her as she stood waiting and in the throbbing triumph of that moment he flung his arm grippingly about her to sweep her into the boat. But as she raised her face to his, the shrouding mantle fell away, and he found himself staring down into the exultant face and bright eyes of a girl he had never seen before.

DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

BY PHYLLIS PHILLIPS

A HURRIED DEPARTURE

October 5.—Several days since I wrote in this little book and several things have happened. In the first place we are on the high seas, yes strange, but true. And I am in mother's very black books, of which there is nothing blacker.

We sailed three days ago, and aside from a slight prostration due to this old ship rolling considerably, I am prostrated anyhow. And why? Because mother disgraced me in Rome. Positively. Made me pack my things at two hours' notice and planted me on the first train bound for Cherbourg and the boat for home. Said she simply could not cope with my vagaries any longer, alone and that home was the best place for yours truly. So here I am. Crushed in spirits, but still optimistic. In the language of the poets, I should wail.

My heart was broken at having to part so rudely from the man who loves me so madly as Etore does, but what could I do? How dreadful he must feel now; how outraged. Mother takes things so hard and upsets the whole smiling world for an idea. That's mother all over.

Etore wanted me to Europe with him and he married in Naples. Here I have been waiting and yearning for some man to be strong enough and daring enough to up and run away with me, and when one finally comes along, I am unable to run! Can you beat it? Well, there's one thing sure, I shall live my own life this winter and I may decide not to marry Etore, or anyone else.

Had another letter, anonymous this time, telling me that my fiancée was obviously in love and very attentive to his own cousin. "This name, while it probably is not authentic, did make me think. That's fatal with me."

I have kept to my stateroom ever since I came on board. This way I can have peace at least. And I can lie here and go over the events of the last few hours in Rome with my Etore.

Mother caught us holding hands in the reading room of the hotel. Bad enough, but imagine how much worse when she received a large basket of roses and lilies, plus an embroidered love letter (by mistake) the same evening.

Up she rushed and greeted me with a terrible look in her eyes. "Was I bent on disgracing the whole family? Didn't I know that foreign men were not like unto our men?" And then I was foolish enough to assure her that she was mistaken and that they were unannoyed alike. That Etore was just as anxious to marry me and make me his countess as Jack was to make me his "Missus." Foolish, wasn't it?

"And a nice countess you would make," scoffed she. "You who cannot keep your eyes from roving and do not know anything about

How many good habits have you formed which save you an infinite amount of wear and tear and trouble? The habit of saying "Pebecco" to the druggist when you buy tooth paste is one such habit.

More and more the tendency is to standardize daily needs. We are tired of lingering in so many "valleys of indecision." Once we find a good thing, we are more than willing to stick to it. Cleansing the teeth night and morning is one of the best habits. You probably use Pebecco for that purpose, and Pebecco certainly does its work well. In this case the habit you form is not the Pebecco habit, but simply the habit of health and cleanliness.

"SEX" IS DARING BUT VERY NICE

Louise Glaum's Latest Picture Does Not Offend

ENTIRELY DIFFERENT ROLE

List of Movie Attractions For Information of Readers

(BY ESTHER WAGNER)

THE title of Louise Glaum's latest picture, "Sex," would lead you to believe it's one of the innumerable pruderies that are so often put before the public. Well, it's not. It's merely the story of a popular dancer, who never had a qualm of conscience about taking another's husband. She could never imagine herself as having only one man at her beck and call, and thought she could violate the laws that regulate domestic lives and get away with it. She did for a while, but—

As a married woman, devoted to her husband, we see Miss Glaum in an entirely different role, that of the woman who realizes that she must pay the penalty for despoiling the lives of so many others. And she does pay, most bitterly. The finale is a surprise and not at all the way you want it, but then, once in a while we get pictures in which they don't always live happily ever after, and this is one of them.

Miss Glaum as the Frivolity favorite is a dazzling, alluring home wrecker, one of her favorite roles, we hear. The costume and scenic effects are a tribute to the director, Mr. J. Parker Read, who knows a good thing when he sees it. The "Spider Dance" as put on by Miss Glaum and a score of assistants, is beautiful. The Miss Glaum was never made to be a dancer, and it seems that she realizes this fact herself.

After you see this picture, you'll agree that youth and charm don't last forever and that the only real thing in life is faith and constancy, and a lot of other things.

The story is the work of C. Gardner Sullivan and forms one of the most interesting photoplays of the season. No money or time was spared on the production and the gowns worn by Miss Glaum are marvelous.

"Sex" is startling, even bold in some places, but it's very, very nice and couldn't offend anyone.

It's at the Lyric.

H. S. STUDENTS DEBATE POLITICAL QUESTION

In a close debate Monday, the final vote being 7-5, the Central High School senate defeated the question: "Resolved, that a Republican president and congress should be put in power at the coming election."

The speakers were numerous on both sides as any senator wishing to speak had the privilege. Senator Davidson of the affirmative and Senator Jennings of the negative were the principal speakers of the evening.

This was the first senate meeting of the year open to the public. It is expected that other public meetings will be held in the future as this one was a distinct success.

ST. MARY'S GRIDIRON WARRIORS TO PLAY SIGNALS SUNDAY

After defeating the Columbus Grove Maroons here Sunday afternoon, the Lima Signals next Sunday will tackle the fast St. Marys eleven at the Murphy-st park.

St. Marys recently defeated the Delphos team 13 to 0, a short time after Delphos had drubbed the Signal, 3 to 0. They average 180 pounds the same as the Signals and all indications point to a good game.

Members of the team are practicing each night on College Field and are being whipped into shape for a hard battle that they anticipate.

At their practice last night new line formations were the principal topics with a punt drill. Each player showed more speed which leads their supporters to believe that they will be able to make another win next Sunday.

A big crowd turned out last Sunday, despite the cold day, and were pleased with the appearance and playing of the Signals. This Sunday the crowd is expected to be larger and is assured a better game from all standpoints.

Another remarkable recovery from chronic Rheumatism of the joints and muscles is that of our local townsman, Mr. W. H. Scroggs. Mr. Scroggs says: "After all that Neutrone Prescription 99 has done for me, I feel the facts should be known to the public in order that other sufferers may take heart and try Neutrone Prescription 99."

"While working for Dodge Bros., Detroit, I suddenly became all crippled up with rheumatism. It started in my hips, went down into my legs, knees and feet. They were swollen to almost double size.

"I had to stop work. I tried doctors and numerous cures, but I grew worse all the while.

"Had to be Fed With Tube. "On invitation of a cousin, I came East, thinking a change of climate would make a difference. Instead of improving, I rapidly became worse; the Rheumatism spreading to my mouth and face, and also both arms becoming absolutely useless so that my wife had to feed me with a glass tube. My future looked dark, as the Eastern doctors and medicines had no more effect than those of Detroit.

"All the while my cousin had been urging me to try "Neutrone Prescription 99", as it had cured him of a bad attack of Rheumatism when he had been in bed for five weeks. Finally to please him and with little faith that anything could help me, I commenced taking "Neutrone Prescription 99", and it hardly seemed possible, but after the first day I commenced to improve and could see big changes for the better.

"Neutrone Prescription 99 Cured Him. "It seemed just like a miracle; aches and pains disappeared; the swellings went down and my twisted hands and feet straightened out as if by magic. After three bottles I was practically cured, but I used two more to entirely rid my system of all rheumatic poisons.

"Two weeks after I commenced to take "Neutrone Prescription 99", I started to work as a machinist, and have been working steadily ever since, and my health was never so good.

"I cannot say enough in praise of "99". In fact I feel so grateful that I want every sufferer from this dreaded disease to know that "Neutrone Prescription 99" will bring them relief, and you may use my endorsement in any manner you think best to induce others to try "99" and experience its benefits."

ATHLETIC MEN CALLED AT O. S. U.

COLUMBUS — The first call has been sounded for basketball toasters at Ohio State. Coach George "Red" Trautman held the initial meeting for basketball candidates Monday night at 7:30 at the Armory.

Captain Szyk and Greenspan are the only regulars from last year that are available for varsity jobs. "Herb" Henderson, "Hoge" Workman, Lightner Lynch, Patterson and Blair loom up as the most likely candidates. All of these were stars on last year's freshman team.

Grant Ward, who is in charge of intramural athletics, makes the announcement that intramural basketball will begin after the completion of the football schedule.

TIMELY SPORT GOSSIP

The Big Ten conference, the athletic body of the big western colleges, is a happy family again. Faculty representatives who draw up the eligibility rules met recently and straightened out the mess regarding S. A. T. of football in 1918, when army football superceded intercollegiate athletics.

The motion made last June was upheld, throwing out the 1918 season, making all men who played that fall eligible for three full years of varsity football. The vote was 5 to 3, Minneapolis and Ohio State not being represented.

The decision will allow Reber, Chicago center; Captain Goetz, Michigan tackle; Block, Iowa tackle and several others, to compete this year.

Only one athlete was ruled out. Moffat Elton, Chicago halfback, would be eligible under the interpretation passed, but the star Maroon athlete was barred on another charge.

Elton should have graduated last June. He was a member of the University of Chicago baseball team, which went to Japan, and it was the intention of the Chicago faculty that all members of the nine should return to summer school to make up work lost during the spring absence. Elton failed to return, and in so doing, violated the rule that an athlete shall not prolong his normal scholastic routine to compete in varsity sports.

Of the twenty-five amendments to the constitution of the Amateur Athletic Union to be proposed at the annual meeting of the legislative committee of that body at New Orleans, November 14-16, the most important, or one entailing athletes of the army and navy to become members of the A. A. U. on their own certification they are amateurs, without any fee. Passage of this amendment would preclude further misunderstanding about the status of athletes from West Point and Annapolis at athletic meets.

RICHARDS TO SCRAP WITH CALLAHAN

DAYTON.—"Blockie" Richards; the Jack Dempsey of the lightweights, local favorite, is training faithfully for his 12-round bout with Frankie Callahan, of Columbus, Tom Jones' championship aspirant, scheduled for the night of November 8.

The Miami A. C. has arranged to stage this show in the Lakeside park dancing hall, which can hold a crowd of 5000, but according to the advance sale of tickets, will be packed to capacity. Much Callahan money is making its appearance, but it is being gobbled up by local fans on even money bets.

The "Blockie" Richards-Frankie Callahan" bout will top an all-star card in which Young Webb and Tommy Carter will battle 10 rounds for the city welter-weight championship, and Keefe Mailey, and Young Rodway will battle six rounds for the city middle-weight championship.

This action also would perpetuate the decision made before the Olympic games by the A. A. U. permitting army and navy entrants to compete in Belgium without legislation with a recognized athletic body.

Immodest bathing suits, the California style of jumping and harness for shot putters, will be precluded by some of the proposed amendments.

A benefit game will be played for George Brown, time right fielder of the Giants, by the Bronx Giants and an all star team at Bronx Field on the afternoon of Election day. Brown, who is married and has two children, is suffering with tuberculosis and he and his family are practically destitute.

The Paulist Fathers, who became interested in his case, have found a home for him and his family in Catskill, but money is needed to defray his living expenses. It is to raise this money, or part of it, that the benefit game will be played.

George Washington Grant, owner of the Braves, learned of Brown's plight recently and said he would take the matter up with President John A. Heyder of the National League with a view to having the club owners in both leagues subscribe to a fund for the player.

Brown was a member of the New York team which won the championship of the world in 1905. He was a splendid fielder, a sharp hitter and very fast on his feet, and in his day was one of the most popular players in the league.

WANTS BOSS TO MANAGE IRON MEN

TOLEDO.—Roger Bresnahan is in the market for a manager for his Toledo baseball club next season. He had one—Mons. Jean Dubuc—but Jean got talked about so much in the late baseball scandal that Roger has just about decided that the former Detroit Tiger pitcher will not again wear a Toledo uniform.

Dubuc may not be guilty and the chances are that he is not, but Roger is absolutely on the square in baseball and he will not tie up with anybody under suspicion. Bresnahan made this plain recently when he told Dubuc to clear his name and then come back and see him.

Dubuc hung around Toledo for three weeks after the A. A. season closed, seeking to induce Bresnahan to sign him to a contract. Then he went to his home at Montreal with the understanding that the job would be held open until after the meeting of minor league managers at Kansas City a week or so hence.

What Bresnahan has up his sleeve then only time will tell, as he declined today to say what he has on his mind.

"I can't say anything until the Kansas City meeting," he declared when pressed for a statement.

Despite his other troubles—and he has plenty of them—Bresnahan is comparatively happy, as he made enough money during the season to pay off all of his obligations and some besides.

Official attendance for the season was 240,719 paid admissions in 82 games, being an average of 2935 a game. This in the face of four years of reverses with a commonplace ball club is considered here as remarkable.

The club really put up a fight for the pennant. One of the ironies of the last days of the race, in fact on the very last day was noted in the following fact:

Minneapolis and Toledo were fighting it out for second place. All Toledo had to do, it was figured, was win one of the two games scheduled. Toledo did it, all right, but Louisville won a double header and took it away from both of them.

Bresnahan already is building his forces for next year. But few of this year's team will be retained, he says. He is going to Kansas City with plenty of coin and will spend it for ball players if he can find them. Toledo fans are for him at last, and hope he succeeds.

SHORT SHAVINGS

The ardent student had to be content with a "What do you think of his execution?" "I'm not at all," growled the Philistine. "But I'm afraid some idiot like you might get him a reprieve."

When you do not intend to pay a bill, there is nothing like being de-ferred in your refusal. The other day a bookkeeper had an "account rendered" returned to him with the following reply scrawled across the billhead: "Dear Sir: I never ordered this beastly book. If I did, you didn't send it. If you sent it, I never got it. If I got it, I paid for it. If I didn't, I won't. Now go and hang yourself, you fathead. Yours respectfully, John Jones—London Answer."

At a school examination the examiner asked one child

"What are the products of the Indian empire?" The unhappy infant began nervously to reel off the list she had got by heart: "Please, sir, India produces curries and pepper and rice and cotton and chilies and chumies, and—and—and—"

"Yes, yes," said the examiner, impatiently. "What comes after all that?" Another infant's hand was raised. "Well, you tell her what comes after that!" "Please, sir, India—"

"How do you like your new car?" asked the Lizzie driver. "Great!" replied the Big Six driver. "It runs so smoothly you can't feel it. Not a bit of noise, you can't hear it. Perfect ignition: you can't smell a thing. And speed—why it whizzes! You can't see it." "Must be some car," ventured the Lizzie driver. "Can't feel it, can't smell it, can't hear it, can't see it. How do you know it is there?"
